

ANOTHER DOWNING STREET BABY ON THE WAY?

(22 March 2010) 2010 looks set to be a very busy year for David Cameron. Not only is the Tory leader the 1/7 red-hot favourite to move into Number 10 but it looks like he'll be doing it laden down with nappies and bottles!

The 43 year-old and his wife Samantha have announced they are expecting a new baby and Paddy Power have already chalked up odds on what Samantha and David might name their newborn. Ewen, which has been a popular family name throughout the years is the 6/1 favourite followed by William at 8/1 and Mary after David's mother at 10/1. The odds on the pair naming their baby Maggie after the iron lady herself is just 20/1 while it's 150/1 they choose the name Gordon!

Whilst there's nothing to suggest that twins run on either side of the family, bookies Paddy Power are quoting 20/1 on a double arrival, and 1000/1 on the Cameron's welcoming triplets into the world!

So, how will expecting a new baby affect Cameron's election odds? Positively according to Paddy Power!

Sharon McHugh, spokesperson for Paddy Power, explains: "A new baby is great news. Cameron might now have more sleepless nights than usual but it certainly won't hamper his chances of election success. When Leo Blair came along, if anything, we saw a lot more support for Tony Blair."

DOWNING STREET BABY? – Cameron Baby Specials

Name of Baby
6/1	Ewen
8/1	William
10/1	Ian
10/1	Mary
12/1	Donald
14/1	David
14/1	Samantha
14/1	Adrian
14/1	Annabel
16/1	Alexander
16/1	Lucy
18/1	Alec
18/1	Tania
18/1	Clare
18/1	Veronica
18/1	John
20/1	Margaret
25/1	George
33/1	Aston
33/1	Sarah
40/1	Nick

40/1 Nicolas
50/1 Tory
66/1 Boris
80/1 Eton
100/1 Oxford
100/1 Tony
150/1 Gordon
500/1 Barack
Others on request

Baby Specials

33/1 The Cameron's to have twins
1000/1 The Cameron's to have triplets
10000/1 The Cameron's to have quadruplets

Ends

For more information, please contact:

Sharon McHugh (Ire) – +353 1 488 1716 / +353 87 922 4143 / smchugh@paddypower.com